ordering a resumption of bombing he has blunted the aggressive impact of the announcement by calling on the United Nations Security Council to discuss the Viet Nam war.

Granted the unassailable facts that there is a war and that United States forces are inextricably involved in it, Mr. Johnson makes a good case for his order to resume air attacks. He says that Hanoi has rebuffed his offers to discuss peace, to encourage which the bombing pause was inaugurated last Christmas ere. The North Vietnamese, indeed, have not only reiterated their condition that American forces must leave South Viet Nam, but have increased their demands by insisting that the Viet Cong be recognized as the sole representatives of the South Vietnamese people. This supersedes the earlier demand that the Viet Cong merely be admitted to any peace discussions.

The Hanoi government, says Mr. Johnson, rejected his peace offers despite pleas from the Pope and from United States allies, and American efforts to appeal both directly and through East European intermediaries. There was no indication that any peace discussions could take place in the near future. It appeared that the cessation of bombing was taken as a sign of weakness rather than of strength.

DRESIDENT JOHNSON HAS cost of the temporary manoeuvring solved his immediate dilemma by advantage which had been given to the enemy. There was therefore no on North Viet Nam targets. But alternative, either diplomatic or military, to a resumption of the bombing

The British government quickly agreed with this reasoning, but Canada has "regretted" the American action on the ground that a continuation of the pause might eventually have borne fruit.

No one can be happy about the American decision. The layman tends to think of bombing in terms of the human beings killed and torn by the explosions, rather than as a scientific military tactic. But the North viet Nam government has certainly shown no disposition toward similar humanitarian considerations. It has held doggedly to terms which it must know the United States; having gone so far, cannot possibly accept.

Complete withdrawal of all forces and abandonment of the South Vietnamese government and people to the Viet Cong, which has been the enemy all along, is an unrealistic demand which, as Mr. Walter Lippmann points out on this page today, is beyond the military capability of Hanoi to enforce-

Implicit in the thinking of both against pollution, particularly in the issue.

Mr. Fulton's speech in the Commons the other day may have produced few new elements for the case against pollution of our water. It did, however, imply support from substantial elements of his party for action on a problem of more than national importance.

He made two main points. One emphasized the urgent need for effective protection of Canadian water from pollution - presumably with remedies for those areas already contaminated. The other sought early establishment of a complete water policy which would assure Canada full use of this priceless resource, and only after that was determined permit possible sale to avoid a "dog in the manger" atti-

We "must well-defined Canadian policy to cover avoid making the fast buck and yelling for immediate cash," he declares. Thoughtful Canadians will say amen to that.

The need for the preservation of pure water has been emphasized by the experience of the United States which, having fouled so large a part of its own supply, is now desperate for additional sources. From our neighbors' self-induced difficulties Canadians should learn a valuable lesson. The United States has proved conclusively what can happen to a more than adequate supply and how costly it can be to restore it to a usable state. In some parts of Canada this blight is also becoming apparent. We must establish a policy that provides for all present and foreseeable future needs in Canada and assures that contamination of rivers, lakes and coastal waters will be kept to a minimum. Then, and only then, should we determine if, or how, some of our supplies can be exported-but not, as Mr. Fulton says, for a "fast buck".

Time to Set Realistic Objectives

THE resumption of bombing in North will succeed or fail as we and they way to break the deadlock is to adopt a Viet Nam is not a surprise, indeed it has been inevitable since the diplomatic content of the peace offensive was set. For on neither side has there been any overt effort to find the terms of a truce which reflect correctly the actual military situation. On both sides there has been some suggestion of softening the de-mands a little. But the basic objective of our adversaries remains the ascendancy of the Viet Cong in South Viet Nam, and our basic objective, as articulated repeatedly by Secretary Rusk, is the liquida tion of the Viet Cong and the ascendancy of Gen. Ky and his successors in Saigon.

The whole worldwide attempt to end the fighting by negotiations is stalled on this disparity. The essential fact about the conflict of aims is that each side has a political objective which is beyond its military capacity. Insofar as Hanoi, and more certainly Peking, are demanding the withdrawal of the United States forces the withdrawal of the United States forces before there is a political settlement in Indochina, they are demanding more than they have the military power to achieve. The United States is able to stand fast and hold on

Beyond Capacity

On the other hand, insofar as the United States is tied to Secretary Rusk's objectives, to defeat and eliminate the Viet Cong, to keep the twenty-eight hundred villages permanently secured against the Viet Cong, and to create a government in Saigon that, without being an American colonial government, is the ruler of the whole of South Viet Naminsofar as these are our purposes in Viet Nam, we are fighting a war which is far beyond our or anyone else's military bring war aims into balance with mili-tary capacity. This will certainly not be done simultaneously by both sides. But if one side makes the first move, it will be difficult for the other not to follow suit.

Thus, if Hanoi says clearly, what it has hinted at vaguely, that the American forces need not withdraw before negotiations bring about an agreed settlement, it would be difficult, indeed impossible in the long run, for the administration to deny that the Viet Cong must in fact be a principal party to a negotiated truce.

It is also within our power to break the deadlock which has caused the peace offensive to fail. And as we are the offensive to fall. And as we are the stronger power, the more invulnerable, it is both our duty and our interest to take the initiative. No one, I suppose, imagines any longer that the deadlock can be broken by bombing, by a little bombing or by a lot of bombing. And there are few observers of the war who think that the deadlock can be broken by doubling or tripling our forces. The

NIEWS that the Government of Ontario and the Toronto Stock Exchange are been buying seats and the price of membership on the Exchange reached $1,000 bership on the Exchange r going to tighten up the rules against securities frauds may be bad news for the stock jobbers. But the signs are beginning to multiply that life is un-likely to prove much easier for mining and stock addicts and other gullible Canadians. The Calgary stock market is coming back to life.

In the checkered his-tory of stock promotion in Canada, it was who taught the early mining promoters some of their tricks. Peddlers of phoney oil stock did such a job in the 1920s that when real oil discoveries were made in 1936 and 1947, it took years to convince the public the booms were for real-

-Ba Mason on the BBC. Two Types

Today there are two types of surviving eompanies. There are perhaps a dozen which have fought off the take-over bidders; and two dozen which are not worth taking over. It is the latter class, the worthless dogs and cats of the oil boom, which are being brought back to life.

Most of these companies are listed on the Calgary Stock Exchange, along, of course, with a number of successful companies. It is the penny-dreadful issues, however, which are giving the Exchange a new lease on life. After years in the doldrums, during which a seat on the Exchange and 10 cents in eash could get any broker a cup of coffee in Calgary, a sudden boom has developed in stock penny dreadfuls will not put the brokers in clover. But if the new restrictions in Toronto circumscribe the age-old practices of the share pushers, what then for the Calgary Exchange?

It is moot to recall that when the Roosevelt administration established the Securities and Exchange Commission, Toronto was quickly overrun by American share pushers. When the Hepburn gov-ernment cracked down on them, they switched to mulcting the public of the prairies by long distance telephone.

Toronto Art

The technique of getting the public to buy shares of dubious worth has been honed to a fine art in Toronto. The first step is for the promoters to take options on blocks of treasury stock in companies whose shares are inactive. stock is given a charge of bogus activity on the exchange. Rumors begin to cir-culate; the public comes into the market and pushes the price of the shares up; the promoters unload at a profit and the price of the stock drifts back to its former level. Sometimes it is even driven down by short sales by the brokers. There are, of course, many variations to this classic, text-book type example. But when shares in companies which are doomed to slow extinction start to double in price, or when shares begin to trade in large volume at little fluctuation in price, the public is entitled to suspect there is some hanky-panky some place. Both are happening in Calgary.

The Alberta penny oil stocks that have become active tend to have several things in common. The companies have been in business around the outer fringes of ex-ploration and have picked up small bits and pieces of oil or gas production. They still have treasury stock which is capable of being let out on option to the share-pushers. They are short on capital. They have long records of showing small gross ome from oil and gas production and net losses in their annual statements. Many of them carry oil and gas properties at values that can be described charitbly as over-optimistic.

Unrealistic

Shares in several of these companies are now selling for two, three or four times the lows touched last year. Even those lows represented unrealistic assessment of the worth of the company. When the income from steadily declining production goes to the inevitable zero, the mpany will be allowed to die. None of the companies, in this category, can raise sufficient capital to get into the oil busisufficient capital to get into the oil business in a viable manner.

Even the independent companies which are adequately capitalized have difficulty putting together the kind of land spreads absolutely essential to building a successful company. For the bedraggled and improvements difficulty there can be poverished little companies there can be only the most forlorn kind of hope. That is about all the share-pushers need. A forlorn hope and a trace of larceny in the souls of the unwary investors have been keeping the brokers in yachts since long before Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford.

From what has been going on lately in Calgary, there is little reason to suspect that the end of the process is any-

That High-Rise Letter

My neighbors and I were most in-terested to read of Mr. R. O. Ney's distress in his letter to both daily news-papers of January 25, one headed "High-Rise Zoning" and the other, "Money Comes First." We were so interested that we looked up his address in the directory and bund it was 3074 Oak-downe Road, Oak Bay. Further investigation revealed that the address he gives, 716 View Street, is that of the Victoria Realty Ltd.

Since we had found that many people inferred from his letter that he owned "19.30 acres of the finest Queens-wood waterfront," we felt obliged to discover how he happened to be a Saanich taxpayer, and found that he owns one of the properties which are to be con sidered for high-rise zoning at the pub lie hearing in Saanich on February 14.

Are there any more public real estate promoters living in Oak Bay and overcome by such distress for the poor Saanich taxpayer?—K. R. Thornton, 2440 Sutton.

Stand on Our Own Feet

It was with disgust I noted the Centennial Committee's intention to give the contract for a Centennial Pageant to an American company. Had there been no one capable in Victoria of producing such a show, the committee's decision would have been justified.

It just proves that however much Canadians may try to sell their country and themselves they will not be accepted ... because how can we convince others we are a grown independent nation, if we don't believe it ourselves. Apparently, the Centennial Committee think American ican producers are superior to can dian ones. That is only because, if it is the case, that they have been given the chance in their own country first to prove their ability.

Victoria is a small city in a young country, now that a century has passed since the confederation of the Island and the mainland, isn't it time we started to stand on our own feet?

As a producer, Mr. Mannering is capable of producing a show to do justice to the event it commemorates.— Mavis Edwards, 445 Sparton.

Local Talent Available

It was with dismay and incredulity that I read of the intention to stage a pageant for Greater Victoria by a United States firm, and at a considerable cost to the taxpayers of this community. Dismay because I cannot believe that Canadian feelings of patriotism can be expressed by so called public relations experts from another country; incredulity because I cannot believe that our representatives can be a party to such contract. After all, the country in estion did at one point in our history do its best to claim this province as its own territory.

Apart from these considerations it is an elementary principle of management that one uses existing resources to accomplish an aim, rather than set up new organizations with new resources. During the past hundred years many celebrations have been staged in Victoria all of them successful and with the use of only a limited budget.

We do not lack for talent, we do not lack for organizers and we do not lack for Canadians.-Edward A. McFayden 170 Kamloops.

Men live by symbols and a country with no regard for its history and tra-ditions is a poor thing. We Canadians enjoy the great privilege of having a Queen who is the worthy head of a great Commonwealth, who lends dignity and prestige to Canada and for all this we contribute not one penny.

Since we have the reality of independence and also the prestige of the British connection, a cherished tie for millions, we have the best of both worlds and would gain nothing and lose a great deal by abandoning such an integral part of our constitution.

Why Lesage Is Pulling Out Of Constitutional Changes

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWA-For months Alvin Hamilton and his Tory echoes had been saying the Fulton-Favreau formula was a dead duck; that Premier Lesage had buried it as secretly as he had sequestered Maurice Duplessis'

Lester Pearson did not believe it and, I guess, was much too honorable a man to question Lesage. After all didn't he have Premier Lesage's pledged

On Jan 2 Mr. Lesage had flown secretly to Ottawa for a tete-a-tete with Mr. Pearson at 24 Sussex Street. What they talked about hasn't been disclosed. Quite clearly it was not about Mr. Lesage's intention to opt out of the F-F formula—or else the letter of anguish and umiliation that Mr. Pearson dispatched to Mr. Lesage last week is a masterpiece of pull the wool over the public's eyes. For that let-ter fairly quivers with the hurt of an honorable man suddenly apprized of betrayal so unexpected and total as to be well-nigh incom-

It is not the letter of a man who had known for three weeks that disaster would strike.

This isn't to suggest that Mr. Lesage has no reason to opt out of his firm commitment to the painstakingly devised formula for amending the Constitution in Canada. He has two

One is that the Union Nationale opposition as a sellout of French-Canadian hopes for constitutional revision favoring Quebec. This argument has made an impression on Quebec votwho for decades have prized the protection of the Imperial Parliament against any effort by the English-Canadian majority to take away

The other reason is that Mr. Lesage is going to have a general election this year. By throwing the F-F formula into Mr. Pearson's he recreates that favored image of Quebec premiers at election time: the white knight with the fleur-de-lys on his shield, locked in combat

Otherwise than the Quebec election, what portends this most blatant political renege since

Mr. Lesage's bombshell letter to Mr. Pearson in which the Quebec premier opted out of the F-F formula was dated Jan. 20-but it did not reach Mr. Pearson until the afternoon of the 24th. The postmark on the envelope might have revealed if it had actually been written on the 20th, before Mr. Pearson's speech in the Commons that evening that promised a tougher federal attitude against provincial en-oroachment of federal powers.

Is this Mr. Lesage's response to that

Before the election Quebec Liberal MPs were afraid to gainsay Mr. Lesage. Have their election successes and the infusion of new and stronger men-notably the "three wise men, Marchand, Trudeau and Pelletier stiffened their collective backbone? Will they now talk and work against Lesage, Levesque, Gerin-Lajoie, Kierans, Laporte and Wagner for a stronger central government?

Liberals from outside Quebec are hopeful. They consider the current Quebec Liberal MPs more reasonable in their attitudes than the last Already some have sharply criticized the

But it's too soon to do more than pose questions. This could be the beginning of another shakedown by Quebec or only the open-ing popgun of a phony war that will end the

Silken Threads That Almost Tie Me to the Apron Strings

MY friend Al suggested a remedy for the cold feet that bother me when I'm winter fishing in an alumi

"Get an old pair of your wife's silk stockings and wear them under your wool socks," he said. "They work the same way that dress gloves do inside a pair of mitts. Maybe that will solve your problem,"
The arrangement seemed reasonable, but I foresaw another problem. It sometimes happens that a wife has chores for a man to do when he wants to go fishing. So I thought it better not to explain to Pat what I wanted the stockings for. I just asked for them. 'Sure," she said. "You going to use them to strain the paint and do the walls and ceiling in the dining room?"

"No," I answered, "I'm going to wear "Wait a minute," she came back. "You're going to take to nylons? Do you think you should? After all, men wearing long nylons . . . could cause talk, you know. I tried to brazen it out. "Wouldn't be the first time I wore ladies' stockings," I said. "First party I went to in long pants I had to borrow a pair of my grandmother's 'silk hose to go with her shoes. My wooly knee-socks and brogans didn't seem quite the thing. Didn't really need stockings though. Mother bought my 'longs' to grow to. I kept tripping over the cuffs and nobody saw my ankles."

"You were younger then," she said. "It's not the same for grown men to wear long nylons. Still, if you're bound to, maybe I'd better lend you'some suspenders, too, eh? I keep thinking of the time Gil Fraser went to and the dining room doesn't look all that bad.

were you. You haven't the right type of knees for them. Are you going to shave your shins first? Ought to, you know. Maybe I should talk this over with Bill Gaddes."

"Do that," I answered: Remind him too about these Boston cases where stranglers used silk stockings," and I looked at her neck. "Or do you think I'm going to pull one over my head as a mask and rob Ed Rowley's store?"

"You're old enough now not to make incriminating statements," she said. "I'd be careful what you say as well as what you

gareful what you say as well as what you

So I finally broke down and told her why wanted the stockings—to keep my feet warm when I was out in the boat fishing.

"Ha," she said, "going fishing again, are you? Well, that ought to relieve your tensions. Don't worry about the work that has to be done around the house. Don't give a thought to painting the dining room. I can do it, I guess, though stretching up to the ceiling really isn't women's work. But go ahead. Take an old pair of my stockings and keep your feet warm. Keeping the house in shape really isn't that important anyway, is it? Maybe I'll call in a couple of painters and maybe you won't holler quite so loud at the estimate they give me as you did when I got a price on the hall.

"You just go along," she continued. "Have yourself a good time, and if your extremities stay warm, think of the nylons Think of the way we usually strain paint with them. Think of the cost of having professionals do the dining room. That ought to make you hot."

I almost wished that Al hadn't suggested the silk stockings. All that bothered me before was cold feet. Still, they did keep me warm,

The federal government was committed to the maintenance of full employment, but its efforts in this direction were partially frustrated by unions which use the government efforts to raise wages rather than to expand employment.

Prof. McDougall said if this continued, the government may be compelled to re-examine the way in which wages and other forms of income are determined in this country.

Nothing Quite Like a Snowmobile

But Sunday, on a press preview, guests were transported It is an awesome-looking creature with a cab mounted on great, caterpillar treads. It has the determination of a mountain goat, the knuckleheadedness of some MLAs, the indefatigable approach of a nagging wife.

Sking has never held much allure for this overweight tub, although he has tried it. Maybe it's because he is not a daring skier, an accomplished skier, nor an intermediate skier. If anything, he could be described as a chicken skier. He wheezes climbing basement steps, let alone a mountain.

He regards trees as great for making houses and lousy for touring via low-slung American cars.

But that snowmobile. It has to be the greatest invention since snow. It combines bronco-riding and free-fall parachutejumping and a ride on a roller-coaster. If the Centennial Committee is looking for an attraction, the snowmobile is it. Set it up on the steppes of the Legislative Buildings, have Premier Bennett sell tickets and the tourists would sink Wacky's bathtubs for a chance to ride in it.

Express Route Rouses the Blood . . .

There are no handlebars or safety grips or seat belts. You just grab the nearest human (selectivity adds to the enjoyment) and hang on.

After two invigorating snowmobile hauls, the party was told it was time to leave.

Instead of returning to the Purple Onion in, a graceful glockenspiel, the snowmobile operator simply went off the top of a ledge and took the express route-straight down. For those of us who have fragile nerves and loose false teeth this was an experience. We were not frightened.

Girl Skier Knew the Best Way Down

At the lodge we were prepared (numbed might be the proper word) to ride the rest of the way to the bus. That seemed the quickest way. But we were outwitted by a girl skier. Attempting a perfect schlemiel, she had made an imperfect one. The word was that she will be ready to try again as soon as the spiral fracture of her left leg heals. The next word was "walk."

If going up a mountain wrecks you, coming down finishes

If you happen to have boots that don't grip the feet snugly,

In no time at all you have dishibin feet.

Judging by the time, effort and money Stewart and associs have poured into their project, they strongly believe skiing and alpining are here to stay.

The notion here is that it is a great day of sport, calculated to popularize basketball if anything can.

Well, that wasn't too tough.

IN WRONG PARKS

What the Red Sox could use most was a good, strong right-handed hitter for their left field wall at Fenway Park. Where could they possibly find a better man than Joe DiMaggio?

As for the Yankees, they were in the market for a good, strong left-handed hitter to take advantage of their beckoning, belt-high right field wall. And who This one looked perfect. Two of the greatest names in baseball, two sluggers who long since had proven themselves, and two men who quite obviously were playing in the wrong ball parks.

The more Yawkey and Topping thought about a Williams-for-DiMaggio deal, the more they liked the idea. And the more they liked the idea, the less reason they could see why they shouldn't make the trade.

The moment of truth arrived and both Yawkey and Topping were up to it. Neither flinched. It was getting late now, but they shook hands on the deal, so the story goes, and then went to sleep.

126 Beds in New Hospital

DUNCAN - Administrator Ken Noton, Monday, released figures on the proposed bed capacity of Cowichan's new $4,000,000 district

The new hospital will have 126 beds immediately and be expandable to 154 beds.

The present King's Daughters' Hospital has a maximum capacity of 111 beds.

A fourth floor shell, allowed for in the plans of the new hospital, could raise the number of beds to 191.

Mr. Noton said there would be a maximum of four beds to a ward in the new hos-

This will allow for flexibility in the patient use of wards.

Besides the total adult beds, the double nursery in the new hospital will have basinettes for 24 babies. The obronic care unit, still in the initial planning stage, will be designed for 40 beds expandable to 50. Mr. Noton announced the appointment of Dr. W. C. B. Janes as president of the hospital medical staff.

The new hospital is scheduled for completion in the spring or summer of 1967.

Accent With Jewelry That Is Fun to Wear

By Penny Saver

A little touch of jewelry can change an ordinary-looking dress into a very special one. In fact, jewelry dresses up any article of clothing. There is such a wide selection of jewelry in shops today that you can't help but find the right piece to by skilled and unique methods. These different items are exciting to wear and add a note of adventure to your costume.

Are you daring enough to be different?

In one shop, I found beads that are just for you. They are made of glazed pottery, right here in British-Columbia. Colors are burnt orange, shades of green, and blue. The beads are not uniform in shape, so they resemble real stones. A long, single strand of these beads, complete with earrings, sells for $6.50. A double strand, also with earrings, is priced at $7.50. There are bracelets, too, to match the necklaces. If you prefer just a bracelet and earrings, they sell for $6. The beads themselves are strung on leather chords.

Unusual brooches are another feature that I spotted. These circular pins are made of copper, and have hand-painted, modern designs on them. The colors are muted blues and grey. A set of brooch and earrings sells for $2.50.

This shop carries a variety of sterling silver brooches These are made of fine, hand-pounded silver. One large pin is in maple leaf design and is priced at $7.

A smaller maple leaf pin, with delicate earrings, sells for $6. Separately, the brooch and earrings are $3 each.

Dogwood designs are also featured in this silverware. The large dogwood flower is priced at $5.50, and a smaller one, at $3. Matching earrings sell for $2.70. Another design is that of a large salmon. This pin is priced

QUEBEC (CP)—A contempt of court conviction against Montreal author Jacques He-bert was reversed Monday by a 3-2 decision of the Quebec Court of Appeals.

Mr. Hebert had been sen-tenced to 30 days in jail and a fine of $3,000 after being found guilty Feb. 23, 1965, of con-tempt of court for various statements in his book, I Accuse the Assassins of Coffin.

The book dealt with the case of Wilbert Coffin, a Gaspe pros-pector convicted in 1954 of the murder of one of three United States bear hunters. The trio was found dead in the Gaspe bush. Coffin was hanged in 1956.

In arguing an appeal last March, Mr. Hebert's lawyers said the right to criticize a murder trial after the execution of the accused should be recognized. The lawyers said Mr. Hebert could not be found guilty of 12, and even this complete agreement has only been achieved by a rule of the American Contract Bridge League that penalizes a player in a tournament who bids a weak two outside this our own rules for a weak two bid are rather strict. To start with, we want to be sure that we have a good six-card suit. Then, since the weak two is a slightly dangerous point count requirements and vulnerability and we try to avoid both the six high eard point minimum and 12 high eard point Finally we don't open with a weak two when we are void in a suit or have any four-card major suit holding in addition to our main suit Sometimes a weak two bid can produce an extra-ordinary, favorable result.

AND INSULATION CO. LTD. No one had a proper opening bid with today's hand but South has an excellent weak two-heart bid. North does not know how good South's weak two bid is but North does know that he has really excellent support for his partner's good six-card suit.

There are scientific ways for North to explore game possibilities but he doesn't need a lot of science. Just a 1314 Broad LTD. EV 2-9181 possibilities out in the common sense tells North that there ought to be a ROOPING INSULATION at its very little common sense tells North that there ought to be a BEST. Killing simply for killing's sake is a wanton act that should not be condoned.

ABC-TV's American Sportsman seems the idea that God's creatures in the wild are there solely for destruction to satisfy the whim of the overly-rich American.

During the course of last year's programs, the producers covered up the filmed killings by claiming the animals under the gun were a menace to the human population. In one case, a bull elephant was dispatched with full permission of the authorities in the vicinity. It made good film, too

But such was not the case Sunday. There was big, brave Fess Parker, Stephen with a gun strong enough to blast to ens the foundations of the Empire State Build-

It didn't stand a chance. The two veterans accompanying Parker tried to Justify the killing by mentioning that grizzlies have been known to attack man. Sure they have but only when disturbed or protecting their young. They also

If nature had intended the bears not to touch the salmon, she would have protected the migrators long before Parker and company stepped onto the scene,

The killing of the grizzly was not justified. Parker's image went down 1,000 per cent because he became partner to destruction simply to satisfy the caprice of the program producers.

The incongruity of the program showed itself later when fishing expert Joe Brooks caught two beautiful tarpons in the waters of the Florida Keys.

He let both fish go after satisfying himself they were close to record weight class.

To my way of thinking, Brooks is the true American

By DR. FRANK MILLER

Mother says the happiest fish have the biggest families. I guess my guppies are happy because they have babies all the time, But I want to know why my goldfish aren't happy too. They have a bigger bowl than the guppies and more food and everything and they never look happy or have babies or anything like that. -H. D.

DEAR H. D.: No goldfish bowl provides adequate quarters even for growing fish. Goldfish simply stop growing in crowded quarters so they don't mature enough to consider family matters anyway. If they are provided with proper food and swimming room equivalent to five gallons per inch of fish, they are usually ready to breed when a year old. Their high humidity honeymoon haven must have at least a 25-gallon capacity. It should be in a high location, have a water temperature of DEAR H. D.: No goldfish have a water temperature of 70 degrees and water that is neutral or very slightly alka-line (pH of 7.0 to 7.5). The lightest end of the tank should have a thicket of myriophyl-lum. Here the female lays between 100 and 3,000 eggs depending upon her size and condition. (After spawning, the parents should be re-moved, as they tend to dine the eggs and or small. fry.)

DEAR A.H.: This sad task is best not done by a do-ti-your selfer. Euthanasia (pro-viding an easy death) should be performed by the skilled hands of the veterinarian. He uses an overdose of an intravenous barbiturate that is practically instantaneous and completely painless.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Somebody is giving me a lot of jazz about that cat called the cheetah. They say it's so fast and all that. I've got 400 tigers under the hood of my machine and I claim no cat is going to beat that. Right?

The surface of the sea teems lost, one by one, as it pierces with microscopic plants and the water. At 300 feet, the red with microscopic plants and animals and many of these midgets are specks of green algae. They add a greenish tinge to the normal blue of the water, and as a rule, the surface of the sea looks bluelsh green. In shallow waters, sandy shoals show through from below and often add a yellow tinge to the sea. At various seasons, masses of floating plankton add tinges of red or brown, pink or yellow. In some places, phosphorescent sea dwellers add a ghostly glow to the waves.

Take Sir Robert first. For Australia, a father figure of ole dignity and authority. During all that period, and still earlier in his first prime ministership before the Second World War, he has stood unshakably for the British connection. He has been embarrassingly devoted to the Queen. He has been resolutely loyal to a succession of British governments -as now particularly like their

Also Prince Charles arrives at a moment when for the first time in country's history, some Australians are beginning question the need for monarchy. In his book The Lucky Country, the Australian writer Donald Horne, whose lively attack on the Australian Establishment has had a wide readership, came out as an open republican.

Is this a serious issue? Certainly not yet. No politi-cian would endorse it and a referendum on the subject would be overwhelmingly defeated. Yet I think the movement will grow rapidly in the next few years.

Political Issue

What is more, I believe the monarchy could become a serious political issue in cer-tain circumstances. If, for instance, the African and Asian members of the Commonwealth were to leave — as they have several times threatened to do —Australia would face the choice of reverting to the old white Commonwealth of Britain, Canada, Australia and New Zealand or striking out on its own. A Commonwealth that still has India, Pakistan and Malaysia among its members has cortain advantages for Australia, even in Asia. But would it not be hard to explain a Commonwealth that consisted only of white tions; and without the Comalth, how could one justify the monarchy?

By ART STOTT

MY friend Al suggested a remedy for the cold feet that bother me when I'm winter fishing in an aluminum boat.

'Get an old pair of your wife's silk stockings and wear them under your wool socks," he said. "They work the same way that dress gloves do inside a pair of mitts. Maybe that will solve your problem."

The arrangement seemed reasonable, but I foresaw another problem. It some-times happens that a wife has chores for a man to do stott when he wants to go fishing. So I thought it better not to explain to Pat what I wanted the stockings for. I just asked for them.

"Sure," she said. "You going to use them fo strain the paint and do the walls and ceiling 'No," I answered, "I'm going to wear

"Wait a minute," she came back. "You're going to take to nylons? Do you think you should? After all, men wearing long nylons... could cause talk, you know."

I tried to brazen it out, "Wouldn't be the first time I wore ladies' stockings," I said. "First party I went to in long pants I had to "First party I went to in long pants I had to borrow a pair of my grandmother's silk hose to go with her shoes. My wooly knee-socks and brogans didn't seem quite the thing. Didn't really need stockings though. Mother bought my longs' to grow to. I kept tripping over the cuffs and nobody saw my ankles."

"You were younger then," she said. "It's pot the same for grown men to wear long nylons. Still, if you're bound to, maybe I'd better lend you some suspenders, too, eh? I keep thinking of the time Gil Fraser went to the Snow Ball as "The Blue Boy" and his hose kept wrinkling down.

"Just the same," she said, "I'd think twice

"Just the same," she said, "I'd think twice before I went out in women's stockings, if I were you. You haven't the right type of knees for them. Are you going to shave your shins first? Ought to, you know. Maybe I should talk this over with Bill Gaddes."
"Do that," I answered. "Remind him too about those Boston cases where stranglers used silk stockings," and I looked at her neck. "Or do you think I'm going to pull one over my head as a mask and rob Ed Rowley's store?"

"You're old enough now not to make in-criminating statements," she said. "I'd be careful what you say as well as what you

So I finally broke down and told her why I wanted the stockings—to keep my feet warm when I was out in the boat fishing.

"Ha." she said, "going fishing again, are you? Well, that ought to relieve your tensions. Don't-worry about the work that has to be done around the house. Don't give a thought to painting the dining room. I can do it, I guess, though stretching up to the ceiling really isn't women's work. But go ahead. Take an old pair of my stockings and keep your feet warm. Keeping the house in shape really isn't that important anyway, is it? "Listen," I said, "when did peapnut butter ever get a chance to dry out around here? And what's this about little jars?"

Win turned her book over, got up, and went out to the kitchen with me tagging after. She opened the cooler cup-board and produced the jar. It was small, all right, and barely sampled.

"You mean they don't eat peanut butter any more?" lasked; and Win gave me an indulgent smile.

"They haven't for years. 1 don't even remember when we last bought a tin." She nodded at the jar. "I keep that around for peanut lutter cookies." "Well," I said, "I got think-ing a bout those sandwiches

Extended Care Plan

By PETE LOUDON

Fewer than 100 elderly patients here have so far benefitted under the B.C. Hospital Insurance "extended care" plan introduced last Nov. 30.

And no speed-up in the plan is likely until the community provides more non-acute hospital beds, pro-vincial officials disclosed today.

(See also Page 11.)

Hundreds, perhaps thousands, of patients (they've never been counted) who are now paying $200 to $400 a month for private hospital care may be eligible for $1-a-day BCHIS coverage.

But until more beds are available, the plan is not being widened and appears bogged down.

Accent With Jewelry That Is Fun to Wear

By Penny Saver

A little touch of jewelry can change an ordinary-looking dress into a very special one. In fact, jewelry dresses up any article of clothing, There is such a wide selection of jewelry in shops today that you can't help but find the right piece to accent any color combination. Some dress ornaments are made by skilled and unique methods. These different items are exciting to wear and add a note of adventure to your costume. Are you daring enough to be different?

In one shop, I found beads that are just for you. They are made of glazed pottery, right here in British Columbia. Colors are burnt orange, shades of green, and blue. The beads are not uniform in shape, so they resemble real siones. A long, single strand of these beads, complete with earrings, sells for $6.50. A double strand, also with earrings, is priced at $7.50. There are bracelets, too, to match the necklaces. If you prefer just a bracelet and earrings, they sell for $6. The beads themselves are strung on leather chords.

Unusual brooches are another feature that I spotted, These circular pins are made of copper, and have hand-painted, modern designs on them. The colors are muted blues and grey. A set of brooch and earnings sells for $2.50.
